LITTLE OUTLINES NURSERY COURSE

An extension course to help supply the critical need of trained nursery school workers is being offered by the education department of GSCW. The first course began December 8, at Macon, when 22 nursery school teachers, who enrolled for the course, began work.

The instructional staff for the course consists of members of the GSCW faculty from the various departments. The course, as outlined by Dr. Harry Little, will extend over a period of 20 weeks with a study group meeting each Friday.

Dr. Mark Smith, superintendent of schools in Macon, and Mrs. Rosanne Chaplin, director of nursery schools are cooperating in this project.

NEW YEAR FINDS JESSIES WAITING

The greeting of the New Year by the students Friday night proved to be a very gala occasion. Some of the girls were dressed as boys, so the couples had quite a bit of fun dancing, especially with the no-breaks now and then.

Talent was displayed in the singing and dancing in the floor show, and in the short skits presented at frequent intervals.

Sara Penn was master of ceremonies, and was joined by Helen Wallace in leading the singing.

The party lasted from 9:00 until 12:30. At 12:00 the Y had a devotional. Mr. Lloyd Outland and Sandy, his daughter, came in portraying the respective characters of Father Time and the New Year.

The party was ended with singing by all the students.

Robbins Presents Recital January 12

Amanda Vick Robbins, a member of the Shorter College Music faculty, will present a piano recital at Appreciation Hour on January 12.

Miss Robbins is a graduate of Northwestern University, where she received the degree of Master of Music. While at Northwestern she was a pupil of the well known pianist, Kurt Wanckel. She established a reputation at Northwestern as a brilliant pianist and a musician whose performances in public were always noteworthy. Miss Robbins, whose home is in Vicksburg, Miss., is a native of the South. She attended Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus, Miss., before going to Northwestern.

She will present the following program at Music Appreciation Hour next Wednesday:

Two Choral Preludes, "Awake, the Voice Commands," and "Rejoice, Beloved Christian," by Bach-Busoni.

Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 1, by Brahms.

Prelude, Chorale, and Fugue, by Franck.

"The Port of Wine" and "General Lavine—Eccentric," by Debussy.

"The Maiden and the Nightingale," by Granados.

"Rhapsody in E Flat Minor," by Dohnanyi.

There will be no Appreciation Hour Wednesday, January 5, because of the Institute of Personal Relations programs.

Fullerton Institute Uses Personal Relations Theme

Lectures And Discussions Twice Daily; Personal Or Group Conferences Available

The Institute of Personal Relations is being held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week. The speaker is Rev. Claude Fullerton, formerly director of Wesley Foundation at the University of Georgia. There he was often heard counseling students and teaching courses on courtship and marriage. At present he is pastor of the First Methodist church of Vienna, Ga.

Hospital Sick List Includes 15 Patients

The following 15 girls have been on the hospital sick list recently:

Dorothy Daniel, Sara Milly Parks, Mary Kennedy, Frances Thomas, Frankie King.

Carolyn Smith, Marie Mitchell, Charlotte Youman, Birdie Lou Carter, Margaret Wallis.

Elsie Parker, Frances Smith, Marjorie Barber, Lucile Shepherd, Rachel Barrett.

PETITIONS FOR SOPH. PRESIDENT ACCEPTED THROUGH MONDAY

Petitions for offices of Sophomore class president and the president of Town Girls club will be accepted all this week and through Monday of next week. Each petition must be signed by 15 students and must be placed in the ballot boxes in the CGA office in the basement of Parks hall.

These vacancies were created by the resignations of Helen Akin, sophomore, and Joan DeWitt, town girl.

Student Speakers Bureau Inaugurated To Aid Morale

A Student Speakers Bureau has been originated at GSCW as part of the Key Center Civilian Morale Information and Training Work at the College to help in war drives of various kinds. Two girls, Flo Finney of Haddock, and Louise Smith of Columbus, have already given four-minute speeches before the student body and before the Rotary Club on the Black Market and its operation. Thirty students, so far, constitute the Student Speakers Bureau: Catherine Carpenter, Milledgeville; Florence Finney, Haddock; Louise Smith, Columbus; Betty Boyd, Adairsville; Leila Calhoun, Claxton.

Jeanne Peterson, Ailey; Frances Ridgeway, Bowdon; Jane Sparks, College Park; Betty Ward, Arlington; Jeanne McGill, Sylvester.

GMC To Furnish Music For Dance

Plans were made for the annual sophomore class dance at a meeting Friday night. The dance is scheduled for January 15 from 8 until 12 o'clock.

A tea dance is planned for Saturday afternoon from 3:30-

5:30, at which the orchestra members will be honor guests.

Bee Gooden, chairman of the music committee, has announced that the music will be furnished by the GMC orchestra and recordings from the Hall Music Company.

Mr. Fullerton is speaking in the auditorium every morning at 10:30 and each night at 6:45, and is available for either personal or group conferences during the day. Those who are interested may sign for an appointment in the Y apartment.

Last night Dr. Fullerton spoke in Bell rec hall to the combined dormitories of Bell and Bell Annex at 10:30. Tonight he is to speak in Beeson at 10:00 and in Atkinson at 10:30. That is to be the regular senior "Y" club meeting. Then tomorrow night, he is going to speak to both the Terrells together in Terrell rec hall.

Students are requested to have ready any questions which they would like Mr. Fullerton to answer or discuss.

This, with the Institute of Human Relations, is one of the institute's sponsored annually by the YWCA on this campus.

SEVENTEEN STUDENTS COMPLETE REQUIREMENTS FOR DEGREES FALL PERIOD

Seventeen students completed the requirements for their degrees with the end of fall quarter. They are: Vonis Abernathy, Janie Frances Bivins, Thelma Brisendine, Elizabeth Cary, Emma Roberts Ewing,

Jane C. Hall, Josephine Hall; Mary Pierce Hammond, Mrs. Mary Love Heath, Mrs. Jewell Ketchin, Odessa McCord; Juliette McKinley, Joelyn North, Ruth Henrietta Sane, Mrs. Ruth Coleman Williams, Marjorie Louise Worsham.

"Y" BOOK STORE REMAINS OPEN

The YWCA has been sponsoring a bookstore the first of this quarter for the buying and selling of second hand books of the students. They are doing this in order that they might finance a refugee student in coming to school here and also to serve the students here on the campus.

According to the last report, they had invested $100 in books and had sold $75 worth, with the others still on hand. Books are still being bought and sold, and will continue to be during the first of next quarter.

Students are urged to carry their second-hand books to the Y apartment and sell them, or to go there to buy books they need.

And Having Writ. Moves On

By MARY BOYD:

Will you stand gossiping with foolish people when you can talk with Shakespeare? A startling statement is it not, and yet a very true one.

Too often we neglect the wonderful privilege that is ours, the privilege of reading. Reading, the calmer of fears, the healer of hurts, the comforter of sorrows. All these, and more, we can obtain from good reading.

Think of those many thousands of people who never had a chance to read. Even so those first men who read the crude printing of the first books it must have seemed a gift from heaven. The printed book, what a great gift it is.

And because it is so great, good books deserve our reverence, our best treatment, for on them is hung the story of civilization and on them depends the carrying over into the future the present knowledge we have.

In like manner and to use the same degree we should revere our power to read. It is a power no money can buy, no thief can steal.

There are two things to remember about reading. Good books stir the imagination or give knowledge or both. If it does neither of these things, it is not good. A book which nothing, takes something away.

PANACEA FOR HEARTACHES

Have you jilted the boy friend that you wish you still had in your power? Or has he jilted you? Does your roommate fail to sweep the room on her morning? Has your one and only just shot the question, and are you pondering over the answer? What about it, do you plan to finish school, or just wait till it be?

If these aren't your problems, perhaps you have others equally as imminent. Certainly everyone has some whether they seem big or little. With those situations of lack and absences of men and other wartime problems added to the plain peace time difficult personal matters, many have plenty of private questions of that nature which need answers.

It is indeed fitting then that Y has offered the opportunity to solve some of these problems. This opportunity has started and is now half over; still, there is time to gain much from the contact with the speaker on the campus for the institution of Personal Relations. Through Wednesday he will continue his group talks; besides this, individual interviews are obtainable.

Some problems seem extremely complex, perhaps the answer will approach simplicity when there is impersonal guidance to help. Why not give it a try?

DuMaurier's Book Holds Adventure

By HAZEL SMITH

The author of "Rebecca" and "Frenchman's Creek" has written another smashing success, "Hungry Hill" by Daphne Du Maurier, another story of a family through five generations.

John Brodrick, the first of the line, organized the copper mine on Hungry Hill, which could be said to have been the curse of the family. Through all the generations a feud between the Donovans and Brodricks existed.

Clonmore, the Brodricks' estate atop Hungry Hill, passes from generation to generation. Here you'll meet: John, son of Copper John, who loves the wild Fanny-Rose Flower; his brother, Henry, who dies young, as do all the Brodricks; and his sisters, Barbara, Eliza, and Jane. The next generation brings to life "Wild Johnnie," who falls in love with his brother's wife and dies in a drunken stupor. His brother, Henry, gives life to the next generation whose outstanding member is Hal. Inheriting the Brodricks' weakness, he leads a life of restlessness, but dies young also. His son, John Henry, is the last of the line. He lives to see Clonmore burned to the ground by the Donovans.

This is an intriguing book which holds your interest through all the pages. The stately and creamy Clonmore, the first John's knobbed walking cane, Fanny-Rosa's brilliant looks, Wild Johnnie's pranks, Hal's paintings and Henry's loneliness will provide entertainment days after you've read the book.

"Hungry Hill" is as strange and haunting as "Rebecca," and the various love stories will match "Frenchman's Creek" and the wild adventure and suspense will keep it in your hands while your studies are neglected.

"Hungry Hill" can be found in the rental library.

To The Students

It is the desire of the Colonnade to cooperate with CGA in bringing the students closer to the work of the student government. We urge the students to make more use of our column Letter to the Editor, in bringing subjects for discussion before the student body.

Whenever you have some question upon which you think would be of interest to the students, whenever you wish to comment on some activity upon the campus, we hope that you will express those opinions to us in a letter. You need not feel that your style of writing is not good enough or anything like that, for we are more interested in your ideas than the way you write them.

When you have your letters written, please leave them on the typewriter in the Colonnade office with your name on them. If you do not want your name published, please mention that on your letter.

We'll be expecting many letters so please don't disappoint us.

THE EDITOR.

ADAMS RETURNS FOR VISIT HERE DURING HOLIDAYS

Miss Austelle Adams, who is on leave from Peabody High School to study at Peabody College, visited here during the holidays.

Brooding

By MARY BREWTON

Oh well, it is a new year and I might as well start right now not griping about things. What if we did have to break up vacation while other schools play? (After all, only half of our faculty have the flu and couldn't get back to impart their knowledge to us.)

Anyway, getting back early has its advantages and I'm not going to complain! I'll just go right over to the dormitory, and start budgeting my time like we are told to do. Armed with good intentions and a bag of dirty clothes, I proceed to the bathroom and turn on the hot water. Only to find it cold. So I murmur to myself consolingly, "You've plenty of time before everyone else gets here, just take it easy. The water will be nice and hot after supper, and you can wash these clothes, your hair, and still start off right." Now, just calm down and go down to see Betty Grable. Sweetie! O'Gandy should be a good cheer-upper. It doesn't matter if your feet get wet—high heel shoes are better than no shoes and you heard the man say he didn't have room for your bag. If you get good and soaked and your hair strings a little more, maybe you'll appreciate that good steam heated room tonight! (Don't laugh. How was I to know the matress had been cocking for two weeks in a closed, heated room?)

Betty Grable does have pretty legs and the costumes were breathtaking, but now that my breath has come back, I'd better do something to stop this wheezing. Oh, yes, that bath. The water should be good and hot by now. Yep, it is! I'll just put the stopper in and let it run while I sit up my hair, and—Now, look. I'm a long suffering person, but why did it have to happen today? The last time I took a bath in that solution of mud I came out three shades darker than I went in! Don't good Milledgevillians realize mud and dirt are supposed to be on the outside of the water pipes?

I can't... more! Won't somebody cheer me up?

"I hear there's a shortage of classrooms."

Dear Jumbo, The Tail-less Elephant, May Soon Have A Tail, Thanks To Club

By JUNE CAROL JONES

One of the most widespread of all unofficial campus organizations is rapidly gaining in popularity on the GSCW campus.

No one who possesses a heart and feeling can ignore the sad case of Jumbo, the tailless elephant.

It was for the purpose of finding Jumbo a tail and restoring his lost manhood that the first group of sympathetic souls gathered together and became the founders of the great crusade which is sweeping the GSCW campus. Hardly a day goes by that doesn't find someone taking up the torch and joining the solemn throng who have gone under the rigors of initiation and pledged themselves to "the cause."

Even faculty members have seen the worthiness of this undertaking and have asked to become members. Miss West is a full fledged member.

And it is reported that Dean Adams is considering joining the club.

Betty Haynie Jordan is president of the GSCW Elephant club. As far as I know, there are 101 vice-presidents. One of the most outstanding of these 101 is Grace Womble, who has had more to do with furthering the cause of Jumbo than anyone else on campus.

If you have any of the humanitarian instincts in you see an Elephant Club member or Grace Womble. They will be glad to welcome you to the ranks of those who are in search of a tail.

After that, the Division of Education Services of the Office of War Information will distribute the play on request to non-commercial theatre groups.

The script is done in the "living newspaper" technique with short spot scenes, space staging, blackouts, loudspeaker voices, film sequences, and projected scenery. The film as well as the script will be distributed to interested groups. As the play is fairly difficult, a 25-minute version has also been prepared for theatre groups who don't have the facilities to produce the complete 1½ hour long play. OWI officials say that each scene can stand by itself if theatre groups want to do one section of the long version.

During the week-end he will have personal conferences with those who would like to discuss the possibility of going to the Lyle Fellowship or other student problems. Friday morning he speaks in chapel. Those interested in having a conference with him should sign in the Wesley Foundation room.

THREE IN PREPARATION TO BE COUNTY SUPERVISORS

Misses Martha Watson of Fitzgerald, Kathleen Wimberly of Lumpkin, and Vinola Kent of Franklin, who have received fellowships, will be on campus this quarter studying to become county school supervisors. They will work with the nursery school, high school, and college under the direction of Miss Jane Franklin. Last quarter they were at the University of Georgia. Each of them has her degree and has had previous teaching experience.

The plot deals with the experiences of army nurses, who are caring for the doomed men of Bataan. Complications arise when a spy is discovered in the group.

This dramatic play will feature an all-girl cast.

ALPHA PSI OMEGA PLAY TO BE PRESENTED FEB. 17

"City Haven," a three-act tragedy concerning nurses on Bataan Peninsula, will be presented by Alpha Psi Omega on February 17.

The plot deals with the experiences of army nurses, who are caring for the doomed men of Bataan. Complications arise when a spy is discovered in the group.

This dramatic play will feature an all-girl cast.

Mr. DeWitt Baldwin will speak in chapel on January 14, concerning the Lyle Fellowship.

LAMBDA PSI OMEGA HOLDS JANUARY MEETING FRIDAY

Lambda Psi Omega, the mathematics club, will hold the regular January meeting Friday at 4:15 in room 24, Park hall.

New Year Welcomed With Worship Service

By JUNE CAROL JONES

In a joint denominational group the citizens of Milledgeville and students of GSCW welcomed the New Year with a worship service at the Presbyterian Church New Year's Eve night. The program began at 11:30 and lasted until midnight.

Members of the Westminster Fellowship for Students are making plans to attend a state conference for the Westminster Fellowship Groups in Georgia. The meeting is to be held in Atlanta sometime in February.

College, school and other non-commercial theatre groups, will soon be able to obtain scripts of the play, "It's Up to You," which opens in New York on March 31.

The play—written by Arthur Arent, and directed by Elia Kazan, whose recent successes include "The Skin of Our Teeth" and "Harriet"—dramatizes the wartime food situation, including black markets, rationing, nutrition, and the dangers of hoarding.

Dorothy Mann and Marie Simpson will attend the Presbyterian student council meeting in Augusta Friday and Saturday.

JESSIES JIVE

Santa was more than good to many of the GSCW girls. He brought Betty Haynie, Jane West, and Evelyn Williams husbands. Sadie Bankston, Harriet Floyd, Doris Baccus, and Ann Lunsford received rings on their third finger left hand. Beth Brooks and Carolyn Cox got watches from their ones' and onlies. Penny Nesbitt, Geneva Wimpey, and Yvonne Peters received mighty good looking pictures from their heart throbs; also Jean Penland got a necklace and Dot Gasset got a bracelet. Lydia Sheppard and Janey Yarbrough were among the many receiving dresser sets.

We have quite a few new girls on campus this quarter. Have you met Ruth Smith, transfer from Georgia, and Anne Pinkerton from Piedmont, yet?

Eugenia Hollingsworth's boy friend got to be quite a favorite of the girls while on the campus last week. Surely did hate to see you go, Jean.

We already miss Kathryn Flynt and Martha Kelly, and the other girls who left last quarter. There are also those seniors who graduated: Pete Hammom, Hazel Huffman, and all the others. Surely do miss you.

Oh, what smart juniors, or rather seniors now, we have. New arrivals in Atkinson—Carolin DeLong, Madelyn Scott, Carmen Singletary, Edith Kennemore, Frances Smith and others.

Presented by the Skouras Theatres, the American Theater Wing, and a group of food industry associations in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, the play will have its premiere in New York at the Academy of Music Theater which has donated its facilities for the production. For two weeks after its opening the play will be performed by New York theaters. No admission will be charged.

After that, the Division of Education Services of the Office of War

Several members of the GSCW faculty were present at a recent meeting of the Southeastern Regional Conference of Classroom Teachers, at which 14 states were represented. Those who attended from GSCW were Dr. Harry Little, Miss Mildred English, Mrs. Fairfield, and Miss Westbrook.

The conference was held in Greenville, S. C.

Elementary Ed Club To Meet At Peabody

The Elementary Education club will hold its first meeting of the new year tonight at six o'clock in the Peabody library.

Mrs. Ethel Fairfield and Miss Lolita Anthony from the Peabody kindergarten and first grade will be in charge of the program, "Music Activities for Elementary Schools" in which the club will hear recordings of music for children.

FACULTY DINNER TO FETE NAVAL SCHOOL PERSONNEL

Officers of the Naval Training School will be feted at a dinner given in their honor by the GSCW faculty on Thursday night.

This dinner is to be in the cafeteria. A program has been planned for the dinner. About 150 guests are expected to attend.

ACP Recommends Colonnade Editorial

An editorial which appeared in the first issue of the Colonnade, September 28, has been honored by the Associated Collegiate Press. The editorial headed, "What Are We Doing Here Anyway?", was written by Mrs. Jewell Willie Ketchins, editor at that time.

The Associated Collegiate Press issues a week-by-week review of college thought and action on important topics of the day with outstanding articles from the college papers.

A copy of this article will be posted in the Colonnade office for all who wish to reread it.

STUDENTS URGED TO JOIN PLACEMENT BUREAU NOW

The Placement Bureau is getting papers and finding jobs for the people who will graduate in 1944. Dr. Little has announced that students who plan to join the bureau, and have not, should do so now. The office hours are posted just outside the door of room 212 in the Education building.

Port Security Force Opened To Women

One more war service was opened up to women last week, when the Navy announced that women would be admitted to the Volunteer Port Security Force of the U. S. Coast Guard. The security force — hard at work in port cities all over the country — serves at a waterfront guard before and after working hours. The Navy Department intends to recruit women to drive and feed men volunteers, and do clerical work.

Like the men, women members of the force will rate uniforms, paid for by the Navy if they put in 12 or more hours per week at the job, and bought at their own expense if they work less than that. The uniform has not yet been designed.

Also like their male colleagues, women will be subject to military discipline while on duty.

Coast Guard officials report that quotas have not yet been set for all cities, but approximately one woman per every ten men is needed. In Philadelphia, for instance, where the Voluntary Port Security Force has about 2,000 members, 200 women volunteers will be recruited.

Women living in port cities who are interested in joining the Volunteer Port Security Force should watch for announcements in their local papers, Coast Guard officials advise.

REMOVAL OF POST OFFICE TO PARKS HALL DELAYED

Removal of the post office from the physical education building to the basement of Parks Hall has been postponed until next summer. It was feared that the job of moving the post office boxes and installing them in the new quarters during the Christmas holidays might take longer than would ordinarily be necessary due to a shortage of labor, and might delay delivery of mail to the students.

Laura Jean Trapnell, Columbus; Minnie Isobel Powell, Fitzgerald; Jeanette Todd, Rome; Beth Hart, Atlanta; Mary Helen Sperry, Albany.

Others will be added later. These students are available for programs in local clubs and other organizations. Their services may be obtained by calling Miss Tommie Maxwell, chairman of the Students Speakers Training Institute, Dr. Amanda Johnson, Director of the Key Center, Mrs. Max. Noah. They will assist in getting the type of speaker needed. A Faculty Speakers Bureau is also in the making and will be announced later.

Shakespeare Would Shake Spear At New Educational Program

By HELEN MATTHEWS

Many institutions of higher learning have put into effect a program called accelerated education. Much information and statistics have been widely distributed on accelerated education. There's the story about the Tech freshman who left class to go to the wash room and upon returning discovered he had missed his entire sophomore year. A new definition for college has arisen from this new program. Several years ago, college was defined as a four year's loaf on Dad's dough, now it's a three year blitz on Uncle Sam's desertment.

I am here to propose a method of accelerated education for GSCW. I list as my references "Tedious Trigonometry for Tiny Tots" and "Campus-ology, the Co-ed's Crave."

My accelerated program will replace all stuff and nonsense such as many institutions practiced where notes are transferred from notebook of professor to the notebook of the student and escapes the mind of both. With this program no one desiring knowledge need go ignorant. One can get an education in one day.

People today are busy, and a student with various outside activities hasn't time to drag through six whole pages of print just to find out when Troy fell. It has to fall a lot quicker than that to reach the student of today.

Here is a typical outline:

I. The Life of Shakespeare:

a. We do not know when he was born, nor where he was born, but we do know he is dead. (See how clear and to the point that is and all in one sentence, too. Any other writer would have taken an entire book to tell those simple facts.)

II. Works of Shakespeare:

a. From a study of his writings we gather Shakespeare was once a soda jerk for Henry V, Act V, Scene 2, we read: "Say now, gents, what will yours be?"

III. Shakespeare as a writer:
a. He wrote with majesty, sublimity, grace, harmony, altitude, scope, range, reach, grasp, comprehension, force, light, heat, and power.

Now let me present the simplified Income Tax Blank as found in our "Tedious Trigonometry for Tiny Tots."

a. How much money did you make last year?
b. How much money do you have left?

c. Send us the amount in Column B.

As I end this discussion to you who are still reading, let me express my appreciation in your stubbornness in staying. Through this you should have gained some knowledge toward your accelerated education. This at least proves Barnum's statement is right—"one is born every minute."
